INTRO TO COMMUNITY HOUSING

TYPES OF HOUSING IN THE COMMUNITY:

There are four main housing options in the community that are discussed here. The terms “Affordable Housing” “Subsidized”, “Low-income” and “Section 8” are often confused so we will try to describe each one.

1. Section 8 is run by local public housing authorities (PHA), and funded by HUD (Housing and Urban Development). Public Housing Authorities are typically run by cities and counties and manage their own project based buildings but also offer Housing Choice Vouchers (HCV). A Housing Choice Voucher is a voucher that a person is awarded and they can take that voucher out into the community and rent an apartment or house from a landlord. The landlord will receive rent from the leaser at 30% of their adjusted gross income, and HUD will subsidize the remainder of the rent. Vouchers are highly desirable and typically are given out based on a lottery system. Each housing authority manages their own lottery system, and sometimes opens the lottery system only two days of the year. Public Housing Authorities also manage individual “project based sites” in the community. Some of the sites focus only on elderly and or the disabled and some will allow anyone to move in (singles, families, disabled, etc). You can usually place your name on these lists via each Housing Authority but sometimes those waitlists will close due to being too long. Project Based Housing means the voucher stays with the unit and not with the individual.
2. People usually think the only way to access subsidized housing is through public housing authorities listed above, which is not accurate. Low-income or subsidized housing is another type of housing offered in the community. These are privately owned apartment buildings that have decided to become HUD funded. These would also be “project based” as the subsidy stays with each unit, in other words you do not need a “voucher” to apply. There are hundreds of these sites in the Denver metro area that can be accessed directly by the applicant. These sites sometimes only specialize in elderly/and or disabled, families, or all ages. Elderly is either considered 55 years or older or 62 years or older, depending on the site. Some sites will even require applicants be 65 years or older. Disability can be strictly mobility impaired, mental health or medical disabilities. Many sites focus on families and will only offer 2-4 bedrooms and these waitlists can be quite long. Subsidized housing is sometimes run by non-profit agencies like Colorado Coalition for the Homeless, Archdiocesan Housing or Mercy Housing, to name a few. Other sites are privately owned by individuals or even by property developers (Brother’s Redevelopment). All of these sites have their own leasing office and can be contacted for an application. Many of the sites will also close their waitlist temporarily due to excessive applicants.

3. Affordable Housing Tax Credit is the third type of housing that will be discussed. The term "affordable housing" refers to properties that receive a "tax credit" from HUD for their rental units. This large tax credit in turn allows them to offer affordable rental units to the community. The actual program is called Low Income Housing Tax Credits (LIHTC) and is run by HUD also. Each year HUD allocates a set dollar amount to each state to offer to existing properties or property developers. A property has to apply for these tax credits and meet all eligibility criteria for the tax credit. The rents for these units are based on a person's percentage of the Area Median Income (AMI), and all have set rents. The rents will fall between the area of Market rate prices and low-income housing prices. These units are ideal for applicants that have income higher than a typical pension rate, someone with a high SSDI payment, or someone working but not making enough for a market rate apartment. Affordable/Tax Credit housing is becoming more and more available in the community.
4. Market Rate Housing is the fourth type of housing being discussed here. This is just your standard rental unit in the community. Some websites that have both affordable tax credit and market rate housing are listed below

Rentskyline.com; Coloradhousingsearch.com; Plentyofplaces.com; Padmapper.com

Calling About an Apartment: Checklist of Housing & Questions to ask when calling apartment buildings

1. Proof of income – if applicable. This includes AND, SSDI, SSI, VA Pension, etc. What sort of proof of income do you require when I apply? Remember you can apply to “subsidized” housing with zero income.
2. Identification – Colorado ID, Birth Certificate, social security card. You should ask up front so you can begin collecting documents. It’s safe to assume you will need all of these, especially for HUD funded properties. Colorado ID Project can help acquire these documents.
3. If you have children, ask what type of proof of custody do I need? To apply for family subsidized housing you must have 50% or more custody of children in the household.
4. Disability – some subsidized sites will not ask for proof of a disability until a unit is available for the applicant. Other sites will ask for proof of disability to be provided along with the initial application. Proof of receiving SSDI, SSI or NSC Pension is not enough evidence for HUD, so they will ask that a mental health or medical provider sign a form verifying that you have a disability. You should ask this up front so you know ahead how to complete these documents later.
5. Criminal – All subsidized and tax credit sites will run a criminal background check so it is good to be aware of what is on your record. Ask them how far back they go for felonies and misdemeanors. Some sites are stricter than others. Most are looking for recent charges of drug or violent types of crimes. You can still apply to any subsidized housing and if denied you have the right to appeal within 14 days. There are two charges/convictions that cannot be appealed which are: lifetime requirement of registering as a sex offender and production of methamphetamines.
6. Housing History/Landlord references. Ask them how many years of landlord rental history do they require? Do they accept anyone with an eviction on their record? What if I have an eviction but I don’t owe them any money?
7. Pets – Applicants cannot be denied admission due to a “service animal”, but it must be a verifiable service animal. In recent years there have been new terms introduced and those include “companion animal”, “therapy animal”, or “emotional support animal”. These terms also fall under the reasonable accommodation act but will still need a letter of support from either a licensed mental health provider or a medical doctor. It is important to know that “emotional support” or “companion animal” are not considered “service animal”, but again are still considered to be an “assistive animal”. If the animal is a “service animal” then the landlord cannot ask for a deposit by law. This still means the owner of the service animal is responsible for any damages after they leave the apartment. If it is an “emotional support or companion animal”, they can still ask for a deposit up front.
8. Move in costs – Subsidized housing is 30% of your income for rent, and security deposit is always the same as that rent. Subsidized housing cannot ask for application fees and clients should always be cautious of any “holding fees”. Affordable/tax credit housing will have larger deposit amounts and will more than likely have application fees. Ask them about move-in costs listed above.

Community Re-Entry Inside/Out

Deb - 303-995-6243

Transitional housing program located in Aurora for individuals with a felony or sex offense on their record and who have been recently released from prison or jail. State Licensed and DOC approved. Treatment is provided there (tx is not substance abuse specific) but can include relapse prevention. There two homes for men and one home for women. Rent is approx. $450/mo for a private room and includes all utilities. You can apply with no income as they will offer you a “gradual increase” in rent and will help clients find work. Usually take referrals from parole or probation officers, but will take direct referrals from Veterans.

Ebenezer House

Paul Biwer: 720-763-2437

4780 & 4782 Williams St Provides transitional housing for men recently released from sober living treatment facilities, half-way house situations, or others who are transitioning into community life with an emphasis on Veterans’ needs. Must be on parole. This is a faith-based program and has access to drug and alcohol recovery services. Ebenezer House comprises 3 separate dwellings with 6 apartments that can house 4 to 5 men in each building. Each apartment shares a laundry, TV room and locked bicycle storage. Weekly rent is $125 per week, single bedroom. Rent must be paid in advance; meals not included and must be able to live well with others. No registered sex offenders or violent felons.

Know Your Fair Housing Rights

The federal Fair Housing Act was signed into law on April 11, 1968, just days after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Amended in 1988, the act prohibits discrimination in the provision of housing and housing-related services (insurance, loans, appraisals) on the basis of race, color, national origin, familial status (families with children under the age of 18 or families expecting a child), sex, religion or disability.

Under the Fair Housing Act, it is illegal to treat someone differently because of their race, ethnicity, disability or other characteristic protected by this law. The following are examples of how a housing provider might discriminate:

- Refuse to rent or sell housing
- Refuse to negotiate for housing
- Say housing is unavailable when it is in fact available
- Make housing unavailable in other ways
- Charge more for the same housing or service
- Set different terms, conditions, or privileges
- Provide different housing services or facilities
- Persuade owners to sell or rent for profit, a tactic known as blockbusting
- Refuse to make reasonable accommodations for a disabled person to use the housing
- Refuse to allow a disabled person to make reasonable modification to his/her dwelling
- Fail to design or construct housing in an accessible manner, contingent on date the property was built.
- Threaten or interfere with anyone making a fair housing complaint
- Deny homeowners insurance or set different pricing, terms or conditions for insurance
- Provide false information about mortgage loans, deny a mortgage loan, or impose different pricing, terms or conditions on a mortgage loan

The Denver Metro Fair Housing Center (DMFHC) is the voice of fair housing in Metro Denver. DMFHC works to eliminate housing discrimination and to promote housing choice for all

If you believe you have experienced housing discrimination, you may:

- File a complaint with a local fair housing organization such as the Denver Metro Fair Housing Center at 720-279-4291, or www.dmfhc.org.

The Denver Metro Fair Housing Center (DMFHC) is the voice of fair housing in Metro Denver. DMFHC works to eliminate housing discrimination and to promote housing choice for all people through education, advocacy, and enforcement.

Your House is Your Home

Whether you rent or own, where you live is more than a roof over your head, it's your home. And when you have questions about your home, you want straight answers. Colorado Housing Connects is a non-profit housing resource that connects Denver metro residents to information, education and appropriate referrals that relate to your housing needs and are already available in your community.

Why You Should Call

We connect residents to a variety of community housing services through one centralized resource. By calling our helpline, you'll be connected to a Call Center Representative (CCR) that will identify your needs and transfer you to the most appropriate housing navigator who can tailor a solution to your specific needs.

How CHC Can Help

We offer resources to all types of residents including homeowners, renters, seniors and those in assisted living, and promote the Denver Metro Fair Housing Center's mission of providing residents access to fair housing education and resources. Specific areas of counsel include:

Homeowners:

- Refinancing and reverse mortgages
- Finding and purchasing affordable housing
- Assistance with housing discrimination
- Falling behind on payments

Renters:

- Becoming a homeowner
- Colorado tenant/landlord laws and rights
- Facing eviction
- Information on rental assistance and affordable housing

Seniors/Disabled:

- Locating senior or disabled housing in Metro Denver
- Finding home repair services and/or modifications for accessibility
- Reverse mortgages
- Avoiding displacement
- Assistance with housing discrimination

It's Free. Call Today.

Call Colorado Housing Connects at 1.844.926.6632 to speak to a housing navigator today.

Services of the Colorado Housing Connects helpline are FREE.
